Category:13th-century establishments in Wales Category:Economic history of Wales--- abstract: Theoretical models predict a dependence of the minimum mass of spinning black holes on the impact of the surrounding accretion disk. The existence of observational evidence for this dependence would validate the theory. However, a statistical review of several observations of supermassive black holes shows that it is difficult to significantly constrain the spin of the black hole. This paper illustrates how a simple detector with a particular geometry and detector properties, which in general are not well known or understood, could yield useful information for constraining the spin of black holes.' author: - I B.
